

ENGLISH 200 A –
Summer 2018 B Term

“Literature of the Pacific Northwest”

MTWTh 9:40-11:50
104 Dempsey Hall
Instructor: Megan Callow
(mcallow@uw.edu)

In this course we will explore a selection of literature written in or about the Pacific Northwest, including long and short fiction, essays, and poetry. Through our readings and discussions, we will identify themes and determine if they help us discern a specific “literature of the Northwest,” or if the region’s literature defies categorization. Water, for example, is one thematic focus of the course because it is an important feature of so much of the literature set in the region.